SIX FIRST REGT.

tin; Company D, Littleton, Captain Hamilton Bogard; Company L, Morgantown, Captain Charles D. Robinson.

This evening the office of the Headquarters company will be moved to the field, with Col. Clarence Joffe, Lieutenant-colonel R. L. Osborn and Adjutant Claude E. Layman encamped. The members of the Headquarters company in charge of the Lieutenants will remain at the Armory.

Company I in charge of Lieutenant Odar A. Watson will move to the camp grounds at the same time the regimental officers move.

This leaves yet to come to camp at Fairmont: Company E, of Grifton; Company K, of Clarksburg; Company M, of Terra Alta; Machine Gun company of Clarksburg; Company B, of Sutton; Company A, of Clarksburg; Company C, of Buckhannon and Company H, of Fairmont.

The work at the camp is progressing rapidly, the visiting companies being hard at work building cook shacks, stoves, erecting tents, and making the mess tables in them. The water to the camp was running at 10 o'clock this morning. The gas not, and it is reported will not be turned on. The soldiers do not need the gas for cooking purposes and as for heating purposes, it is thought the large supply of blankets will provide warmth sufficient.

Major W. A. Powell, medical examiner, claims that Company H, Captain Thralls, passed with one of the best companies of men ever examined by him since his first day in the service.

The rest of the companies are also made up of a class of men better than in most states and all that have passed are of the type that will make regular fighting soldiers.

General Order Number 7, issued last evening, relieves the company court officers of their duties as Court Martial trial officers and places all court martialing in the hands of Lieutenant Colonel Robert Osborn. The order reads as follows: "1. All summary court officers appointed under paragraph 7, Regular and General Orders No. 1, 1917, are hereby relieved. 2. Lieutenant Colonel R. L. Osborn is hereby appointed trial officer, summary courts martial of this command."

Persons feeling that they are not amply protected by the First Regiment National Guard of West Virginia should see the manner in which Company D, from Littleton, pitched its tents last evening and made ready for camp life. Every move was done according to a system such as only the United States army can have. The men are in good trim and most all of them have been with the guard for some time. The same may be said of the Gregory band from Clarksburg, which though consisting of musicians, has also engineers and expert tent pitchers. These two companies and the Sanitary detachment were all encamped on the Fair Ground last night and were up early this morning to answer the first call at 6:30 o'clock. From that time on it has been on sweet round of doing nothing but eat and work.

The Gregory band is at the farthest end of the camp from the street car line and is on the Hughes farm. It will be next the battalion under Major Ed. Carskadon, formerly captain of Company I here, and will furnish all sorts of music for this battalion. The military band yesterday erected its cooking shack, its tents and got fuel into its cooking stove but was unable to dine among the birds and the hills. The work was not completed in time and the boys were forced to eat at a restaurant where they enjoyed their mess after a hard day's work.

Company D from Littleton, did likewise, Captain Bogard seeing that his men got the best possible under the conditions. Captain Bogard was the first company to get tents erected on the plot set aside for the First Battalion. Today others began moving in and by night fall tomorrow the entire First Regiment should be safely quartered on the camp grounds.

The officers' tents will be located between the Grand Stand and the stables. The supply tent was placed between the arsenal, formerly exposition hall, and the outer fence. These places are kept guarded by armed men of the local companies, absolutely no one being allowed by except officers.

Last night the grounds were lighted with electricity. Lamps were put in shape for use yesterday. Water lines and gas lines are complete to the ground. Water Commissioner Ira Smith making his final trip to the Fair Ground yesterday evening in company with Street Commissioner Albert Lehman and City Engineer Shrevebury Miller.

Notwithstanding the fact that rumors have it that the First Regiment has orders to move it has been arranged for that the companies stay here for some time. The men were all examined last night by Major William A. Powell and as far as could be learned there were few if any that did not pass. Other units of the First West Virginia will undergo the same examination at the camp grounds as soon as they arrive.

An interesting demonstration was staged in the supply shop yesterday when a rubber salesman subjected his goods to a rather severe test. A strip of rubber was cut from the casing of a Republic tire and bystanders were invited to break it. Several huskies took turns with it and after much puffing and blowing each retired from the lists with sore hands and aching arms. At last pliers were requisitioned and two men equipped with these succeeded in pulling apart the slender piece of rubber.
